

something else to entertain them with. Think of yourself as the content producer at a TV channel with the responsibility of figuring out what to stream, whom to stream it for and where to procure all the necessary things for you to commence your stream. The possibilities are endless the responsibility is huge.

So, let us dive deep into the adventurous world of game livestreaming and get a know-how of what all people like to watch and how you can figure out what your audience is into.

Live-streaming Chat

Video game live streaming is a trend where individuals broadcast themselves playing particular games and there's usually a live-chat functionality built into the platform which allows the livestreamers to communicate with the audience and get feedback. These platforms have been prevalent since the mid-2010s with US-based websites like Twitch and, later on, YouTube and Facebook, to China-based websites such as Huya Live, Douyu, Bilibili, and many others. The concept has taken the world by storm since then.

Coming back to the chat functionality. You can set up multiple bots to monitor the chat functionality. A lot of livestreamers use bots to moderate the chat anyway so all you need to do is built a word density function to see what terms are most used by your audience. Let's say if a lot of your viewers
