

a group. Any new moderators will face difficulties that they must solve as a group, but every current franchise will face a changed situation that they must adjust to and cope with. It's good to integrate a moderation team as a target to aim for. Mods must look forward more to information that will help them evolve as moderators and boost the team's current effectiveness.

Professionalism

Moderators are primary members of the culture, and because of that, they should embody the perfect community member. Many aspects contribute to displaying integrity, varying by how mods communicate with participants in general to continuity in moderation behaviour.

The involvement of moderators must never make a person feel uneasy; there ought to be a delicate balance between “I can talk with this moderator like every other person” and “This is a moderator, and I must take whatever he says seriously.”

As in every collective initiative, there is the likelihood of disagreement within a moderation team. This is definitely something you will all have to deal with at some time throughout the tenure of your mod squad. It

Professionalism

Copyright attribution: Photo by Art Janowiak is licensed under CC BY-NC-SA

Problem-solving

Copyright attribution: Photo by Lucidchart Content Team is licensed under CC BY-NC-SA