

```

useEffect(() => { setPagination((prevState) => ({
    ...prevState,
    pageCount: prevState.data.length / prevState.numberPerPage, currentData: prevState.data.slice(pagination.offset, pagination.offset + pagination.numberPerPage) })), [pagination.numberPerPage, pagination.offset]) const handleClick = event => {
  const selected = event.selected;
  const offset = selected * pagination.numberPerPage;
  setPagination({ ...pagination, offset });
}
return (

    {pagination.currentData && pagination.currentData.map((item, index) => (

        <h3>`${item.title} - ${item.id}`</h3>
        {item.body}

    ))}

  <ReactPaginate
    previousLabel={'previous'} nextLabel={'next'} breakLabel={'...'}
    pageCount={pagination.pageCount}
    marginPagesDisplayed={2}
    pageRangeDisplayed={5}
    onPageChange={handlePageClick}
    containerClassName={'pagination'}
    activeClassName={'active'}
  />

);
}
export default App;

```

Copyright: Log rocket

Pagination implementation code (Part 2)

estimates the initial offset, which is then used to determine the current data to view.

2. Infinite Scroll Method

Infinite scroll is another way to make a large amount of data. When you