

Creating the down position

You should also make sure that your upper body begins to sink. Again, you'll have to keep it understated. If you watch someone walk consistently, you'll see that their hips dip somewhat, but not much. You may start to give

Down positions

this stroll a little more individuality once you start overdoing this. But, because it's a normal and simple walk, we're focused on improvising the mechanics of the body and making it seem genuine. Instead of worrying

Making the walk like a real person's walk