video. For example, You freeze for 2 seconds a moment in the video. So, when the video plays, you'll notice there's no motion during that two second part.

Where are they appropriate?

Now that you've learned about the different InShot effects and the tips and tricks to apply them, it's time to understand where they fit perfectly without looking overly stuffed or unnecessary.

- Speed

High speed or “hyper-lapse” is often used in YouTube videos, IGTV, and Instagram reels for a product unboxing video, DIY tutorials, or videos where you want viewers to focus on the results rather than the making process. The speeding up is also convenient to resize a longer video to a shorter one without hampering the content.

Slow-motion videos are popular to add a dramatic feel to a simple underrated video.
