

7. Chainlink

With a market cap of US$ 10.96 billion, chainlink is an open-source technology whose main idea is to foster a community of developers, researchers, and users who share a similar goal. This decentralised network was built on Ethereum.

8. Litecoin

Introduced in 2012, Litecoin was specifically designed to carry on cheaper transactions effectively.

9. Binance coin

Binance coins are the crypto coins that are associated with the Binance exchange.

10. Dogecoin

Runs on blockchain technology, Dogecoin is widely accepted for tipping users on apps like Reddit and Twitter.

11. Stellar

Based upon ledger technology, stellar is an open-source, decentralised protocol that promotes quick, cross-border transactions between different currencies.

12. Bitcoin cash

Developed in 2017, Bitcoin cash is a fork of Bitcoin. The Bitcoin cash was designed to eliminate the scalability issue in Bitcoin.

13. USD coin

USD coin is another decentralised stablecoin responsible for tokenising US dollars and promoting their use on public blockchains.

14. Wrapped Bitcoin

In order to use the Bitcoin reserves on the Ethereum blockchain in DeFi applications, the wrapped Bitcoins are taken into consideration.

15. Uniswap

Uniswap, introduced in 2018, is a leading cryptocurrency whose primary purpose is to exchange cryptocurrencies.