

years, the platform has grown immensely; however, it is becoming more decentralised after the introduction of BitTorrent tokens, which enables benefits including high-speed download and so on.

44. UNUS SED LEO

Another popular type of cryptocurrency is UNUS SED LEO. It is designed to use Bitfinex cryptocurrency exchange to minimise exchange, trading, and lending fees.

45. Celsius

First introduced in 2017, Celsius is one of the first and leading banking platforms designed specifically for cryptocurrency users. The platform enables you to earn interest, borrow cash, transfer money, or make payments. These tokens provide benefits, including increased payouts and so on.

46. Dash

Dash is another popular name in the world of cryptocurrency. It was first released recently in 2021, which is often termed as a privacy-focused coin and lately, it has been widely used as a medium for everyday transactions for regular goods and services.

47. Algorand

Another blockchain-based cryptocurrency is Algorand, an open-source platform that aims to promote security, scalability, and decentralisation. This platform widely supports smart contract functionality. Note, Algorand has its native currency called Algo.

48. The Graph

The Graph is a popular cryptocurrency. It is basically a blockchain data search engine from various networks, including Ethereum and Filecoin. Here, the information is collected from various blockchain applications, which promotes information retrieval.

49. Decred

Released in 2016, Decred is a decentralised, blockchain-based cryptocurrency whose sole purpose is to facilitate open governance and community interaction. This cryptocurrency is a combination of two consensus models, including proof of stake and proof of work.