

Your information is your business!

The relationship between privacy and convenience is a simple one. Think of it as a weighing scale, with one side being privacy and on the other side you've got convenience. You get to balance the scale in favour of privacy or convenience and the thing that you weigh down the scales with, is your private data. Share more of it and you'll find a lot of online services becoming extremely convenient and tilting in your favour. In fact, you might even wonder if every website or app or
