

On the online stage

Be prepared for every adversity that the Os and 1s throw at you when online out in the public.

The pandemic brought along scenarios that we had never imagined we would have to face. Even the toughest of bosses all over the world, as a compulsion had to allow their employees to work off their couches at home. But this brought along a whole new array of data safety and privacy threats as things went online. Public events like standup comedy shows and movie screenings and different types of workshops also found the online medium to be their platform of choice.