

drawer and widget support. That's it.

Long press on a free space on your home screen and go to “Home Settings”. This is the control centre of the app. You'll find everything related to the customisation of the launcher here.

As seen above, the settings page isn't long and even the sub menus aren't long. The app provides you with a basic to medium level of customisation and that's it. Although we did find a cool easter egg while using the app. Go home and long-press any icon. Click on the “Customize” button. You'll see this menu pop up:-

Tap on “Swipe Up” and from this list, select “Play YouTube Rewind 2018 (Distorted)”

Now, whenever you swipe up on the said icon, Will Smith's intro for YouTube Rewind 2018 will play. Just make sure you're not wearing headphones at that time.

In all seriousness though, we really liked the “swipe up” feature.

And that's pretty much it. There's nothing much or special to talk about this launcher. All we can say is that if you want no-nonsense, cut the bullshit launcher that just works, you should blindly install this one.
