

Notification Shade

Swipe down the way you want it

The notification shade is a very important part of our experience with our phones. May it be Android or iOS, the notification shade allows you to glance through your notifications, reply to them, dismiss them and even change some basic system settings like WiFi, Bluetooth, etc. while you're at it.

For some users, the little to no customisation that most companies give for the notification shade may be enough. After all, they just want a place where they can see notifications, right? Just a simple and robust use of the notification shade. But what if we told you that you can do much more with your regular old notification panel? If you're one of those people who like