

and ‘swipe up’ from the white pill.

And there it is. Your bottom quick settings menu, in its most bare-bones form. You can access this menu from whichever app you want and it serves as a really nice replacement for the stock notification shade. Let’s talk about customisation now.

Here’s where the fun ends and the disappointment begins. You see, by default, the free version of the app only gives you two themes - White and Blue. That’s it. Literally everything besides that which is even remotely related to customisation is locked behind a paywall. You need to make a one-time payment of ₹69/- and then you can unlock the full potential of the app. There are a truckload of features in the app and there are a truckload of ways you can customise your bottom notification shade too but unfortunately, it is all locked behind a paywall.

What’s not locked behind a paywall is the “Handles” part of the app. Handles / Triggers are the places from where you can activate the bottom notification shade. By default, we set it to the bottom and that too, at the centre of our screen. Remember that
