

Alternatives

Even the most used default apps of your phone can be customised

What do you think are the most used aspects of your smart-phone? Most of you would be clicking a lot of pictures and even shooting videos, right? Then there's the keyboard with which you're interacting with most apps. There's also the dialer which is used to make calls. And there's the SMS app which is used primarily for receiving OTPs these days since most of the texting happens either on WhatsApp, Telegram, Instagram or Signal. Most of us take these default apps for granted and never look past them. Some manufacturer's UI even makes it cumbersome to use anything else. What if you could swap them all out for better alternatives? That's what this chapter is all about.

Keyboards

The keyboard that comes with your Android phone works just fine. You can type plain old messages, emails and notes in the language of your desire. But with people shifting online for most communication, expression is much better with
