

Now, download and install the app from the Play Store. Open it up and you'll be greeted with a prompt to make QKSMS your default messaging app. Just choose QKSMS from the list and press "Set as default". This will grant the app all the permissions required for it to function.

Once you do the above step, the app will take a minute or two to gather all the messages in your device.

After it's done, you should be seeing something like the right side picture above.

Firstly, let's cover the customisation. Tap the hamburger menu (three horizontal lines) on the top left of the screen and go to Settings. From here, you will be able to control each and every aspect of the app. The coolest thing by far about this app is it's colour customisation. Tap on the first option "Theme" and you'll see this screen >

Yes, the app offers you different shades of almost all the colours for you to choose. And if that wasn't enough, if you swipe left and go to the QKSMS+ tab, you'll get a literal colour picker with a slider. You can literally choose any colour you want from there.

The only caveat is that in order to use the QKSMS+ tab,
