

have to select one from them. Coming to the conversations, they don't have a lot of stuff to be tinkered upon. Just simple, to the point messaging. You can send contacts and photos through this app but it will be counted as MMS instead of the SMS and carrier charges may apply.

One feature that we liked about this app is the ability to change the theme on a per-conversation basis. If you press the three dots on the upper left corner of the screen, it'll bring up the Details panel.

You'll see a small palette icon beside the contact name. If you tap on it, it'll take you to the theme selector where you can select the colour scheme for the chat. Here the colour that you'll select will be only applied to the chat itself and not the app.

All in all, QKSMS is a very good app if you want a fluid, customisable and adfree experience for your messaging needs. We highly recommend that you check this app out.

Chomp SMS

Comp is another ad free alternative to your default SMS app. It offers a no nonsense approach to messaging while having some really nifty tricks up its sleeve. From a customisation perspective, we think that this app has it all. You can customise each and every aspect of this app. Let's get right into it.

Download and install the app from the Play Store and set it as your default SMS app (you will get a pop up for it).

Well, you can stop here and use the app as is but where's the fun in that! Let's get customising!

Let's go for the overall look and feel for the app. Press the three dots on the top right corner of the app
