MediaMonkey is primarily free, but upgrading to a Gold membership unlocks many benefits. All of the features and a year of upgrades are available for a one-time cost of $25, but if you want to go all-in, a lifetime license is available for $50.

iTunes

Apple hasn't changed the Windows version of iTunes into Apple Music yet. However, there aren't many distinctions between the two. Whether or not you own any Apple devices or have an Apple Music membership, iTunes remains one of the best options for a local media player for Windows 11.

The administration of music libraries has always been an area where iTunes has excelled. If you have a huge digital music collection, the software is ideal.
