Productivity Tools

The greatest productivity tools make increasing team efficiency straightforward and effortless, whether you're in the office or working from home.

Managers can do tracking on a project-by-project or department-by-department basis to ensure that the right people are in the right position to get the task done. The best productivity apps on the market are listed here, along with our top picks and other options to consider.

RescueTime

RescueTime tracks the time you spend on your computer or mobile device doing certain tasks such as visiting specified websites or using specific apps. It runs in the background, and silently logs your activities without being distracting.

Setting goals and alerts for yourself is possible, and the idea is that these objectives will help you create better working habits. The app's free edition allows you to analyse three months' worth of data, but subscription packages (starting at $6 a month) have no limits and include a number of other functions.
