Thunderbird

Mozilla Thunderbird is a cross-platform, open-source e-mail client which is mainly developed to provide a space for more secure email transactions for its clients and as a competition to beat the other professional e-mail clients like Microsoft Outlook and Eudora Mail. As Gmail is for Google Chrome, Mozilla Thunderbird is for Mozilla Firefox. This enables the users to connect and sync the details they have in the Firefox browser across all other devices their e-mail is logged in. This email client supports add-ons and extensions as well.

Why you must get it:

One of the key extensions of Thunderbird is Mozilla Lightning, an extension that works on the calendar and engages the personal information manager's capabilities to Thunderbird. In this email application, the user can change the look and feel of the working environment as a wide range of skins are
