

editors choose the most effective pieces of audio to accompany each frame of the film and then adjust those parts as required. They typically begin with the conversation and sound effects, and then weave in the musical accompaniment. The following are examples of applicable classes and programmes:

- Online Course: Audio Post Production for Film and TV
- Professional Certificate in Music Supervision
- Bachelor's Degree in Music Composition for Film, TV, and Games

When you acquire a degree in music production from any good college or undertake plenty of internships with production houses, you unlock amazing opportunities in the dynamic field of music production. You will acquire the knowledge that will enable you to use technology to cooperate with other musicians and increase the possibilities of musical artistry in film, television, video games, and live musical performances. 