

Podcast Guests

Now is the time to compile a list of guests you would like to have on your podcast if you plan to host an interview show in the future. Then start reaching out to them.

Utilising a service such as Acuity Scheduling can be helpful in this regard because it allows individuals to make appointments directly on your calendar at times that are convenient for you.

This not only saves you the hassle of going back and forth trying to figure out a meeting time, but it also frees up your attention to concentrate on bringing in more people.

Additionally, you have the option of asking them for specific information, such as their Skype login or an introduction that you may read when they book a meeting with you.