

Social Media

Add your social media links to your Buzzsprout podcast website and players.

Your Facebook Page

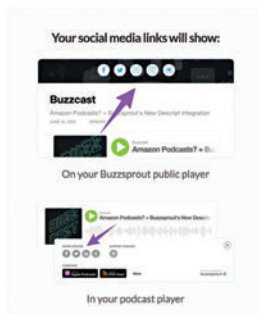

Your Twitter Page

Your Instagram Page

Your LinkedIn Page

Recommended Steps (After Starting A Podcast)

When you first launch a podcast, your work is far from over. The following are some suggestions to make your show more appealing and more easily expandable:

Create A Website

WordPress (Easy To Medium Difficulty)

If you want your podcast to be considered seriously, you should have a separate WordPress host even if the company that hosts your podcast also provides you with a website. We've written several FastTracks around setting up your own WordPress website so that's a great place to get started.

Podcastpage (Easiest Method)

The website builder and hosting service rolled into one known to cater exclusively to podcasts is known as Podcastpage. Something similar to Wix, but tailored specifically to the requirements of podcasters.

There is no requirement for coding. You simply select one of their themes, modify it to reflect your brand's identity, and, if you so desire, incorporate Google Analytics or email marketing.

You have the option of adding pages or blog posts, personalising your audio player, and simplifying the subscription process for your site users.