

COVID-19 pandemic. However, designing “honesty” into AI agents is not the only approach to preventing misrepresentation. Keeping powerful AI agents out of the hands of unscrupulous actors and educating actors on how to use AI agents could also help. Governments and government agencies can be responsible for regulating the use of AI agents, as demonstrated by the recent European Union Artificial Intelligence Act. Guidelines for corporations and other organizations on how to use AI agents could also be provided. Given the highly sophisticated nature of the content spread by AI agents, addressing this problem will require a combination of efforts and actions by multiple organizations in different locations.
