They also offer continuous optimization, with insights into what works for your competitors and the ability to apply relevant and high-potential keywords. Using Search Frequency Rank and Click Share & Conversion Share, you can stay on top of the keywords that perform best. Additionally, AI will soon suggest listing improvements based on your sales results, helping you drive even more sales.

This can be a boon for marketers.

Product descriptions are crucial to buyers, with 87% confirming that the content on a product page influences their purchasing decision. According to 85% of buyers, the description is the most important element of a product page, as it helps them make an informed decision.

Insufficient or incorrect descriptions lead to product returns for 50% of buyers, and 54% of those who return products are unlikely to buy from that seller again.

Product pages without descriptions are either omitted or hidden from search results, making it less likely for potential customers to find your store. It's not
