

Enter

20
Model and actor Shawar Ali talks about his gadget collection

20
AMD's Puma goes on the hunt for Intel's Santa Rosa

26
Microsoft proves that the "we like Linux" thing was just a phase

30
Programmers love Lua

th Sense

31 Communication

That most fundamental human need...Will we get true broadband? Will we go 3/4/5/whatever G? What about understanding each other?

57 Computing

It all comes down to hardware and software—one progresses, the other follows, and the cycle continues...

38 The Web

What shape will the Web take next? We mull about better searches, more socialising and Web x.0

75 Gaming

What'll it be? Enjoyable games that aren't all that great looking, or ultra-realistic games in all their HD glory?

47 Personal Technology

The gadget of our dreams might be closer to reality than you think

85 Entertainment

Of high-definition, on-demand video and the future of user-generated TV

Contents Magazine

Expert Opinion

45 An Equal Access

Sukhinder Singh Cassidy, Vice President, Google (APAC & Latin America), on the changing faces of the Internet, search and more

55 Mobility, Seamless Connectivity, And Convergence is the way ahead

R Zutshi, Deputy Managing Director, Samsung India, talks about convergence, gaming, and expensive gadgets coming home

46 The Future Of The Internet

George Zacharias, Managing Director, Yahoo! India talks about what the Internet means to India and what's going to change

72 Innovation, Imagination, And Emotional Computing

Intel's Justin Rattner tells us that the future lies in technology that we hold dear to us, and that innovation will abound

54 Up-Close And "Personal" Technology

Digit reader Abdul Rehman Noor accepted our invitation, and wrote in about gadgetry of the future

73 The IT Industry's North Star

Dr Hector de J Ruiz, Chairman & CEO, AMD, on why Moore's Law isn't as relevant as it was