

Tips & Tricks

With Android 6.0 Marshmallow rollouts in full swing it's the perfect time to unravel its secrets

110QnA

No one trouble shoots your gadget woes like we do. We exaggerate of course but you get the idea.

112

What's the best Android launcher for you?

Against the backdrop of Microsoft launching its own launcher for Android, we take a look at some of the most popular and obscure launchers out there and tell you which one is the best for you.

Dhruv Kumar
readersletters@digit.in

Android, from its very inception, has been well known for its open source and highly customizable nature. With an Android device in your hand, you can make it look and behave exactly the way you desire. Home Screen Customization to the level that Android offers, is by far, way ahead of what other mobile operating systems offer. Launchers on Android let you customise a variety of things ranging from home screen layouts, style of icons and animations to even custom gestures and launch actions. With companies like Windows, Nokia and Yahoo foraying into the launcher space, it's time we brought you a comparative look at some of the most popular launchers (and even obscure ones) out there.

much to offer when it comes to customizations, it is definitely a treat for the ones who like things plain and simple. What you however can control is few settings such as app drawer suggestions based on the frequently used apps.

a simple and easy to customise launcher. On first glance Arrow's interface will remind you of the iOS home screen UI with the page full of apps and a frosted background swipe-up settings menu. Arrow launcher customises itself and gives the user one tap access to their recently used apps and settings. The main screen being the apps screen, the other three are people, recent and widgets screens. All of them periodically update depending on your interaction with the phone. So, say if you took a photo 15 minutes ago, the picture will be visible on the 'recent' page, along with your recently contacted contacts and recently used apps

The iOS style swipe-up menu, on the other hand, gives you access to the frequently used settings along with an expanded view of your docks page where you can place the more necessary apps as per your choice. Microsoft also gives users some eye candy with Bing Wallpapers.

This launcher definitely looks promising and very well executed.

Simple and easy Google Now Launcher layout

Arrow Launcher's 'Recent' page

What makes this launcher so widely loved is access to Google Now on the left most home screen.

1 Google Now Launcher

Google's own offering is the simplest that a launcher can offer. It's fast, simple and easy. Sporting a more classic look of an Android launcher with the simple dock and icons home screen and a search bar at the top. Though this launcher has not

2 Arrow Launcher by Microsoft

Recently, Microsoft Corporation decided to present their Android fans with

3 Z Launcher Beta by Nokia

This launcher by Nokia, still in its beta testing phase. An interesting feature it brings is the ability to scribble. The home