✉ This is my first letter to Digit ever since I subscribed to the best ever tech magazine available right now in the market. Sorry for the delay in sending the feedback as I was busy with exams. I'm just 13 years old and study in Class 8. A few months ago, I read a magazine and have been mesmerised by it ever since – that magazine is the one and only Digit. Firstly, congratulations to the entire Digit team for the newly launched app, 'Tech Tips', which is useful for new smartphone users. While it's nice, it still needs some work. Secondly, the November 2015 issue had many other gadget reviews such as TVs and cameras, in addition to smartphones. The comparison of the resale value, depreciation, etc is really useful for everyone purchasing any new phone. The Google event coverage was well done and I liked it very much. And lastly, the "small book of big thoughts" was really interesting and I loved reading it. Thank you for your valuable reviews, which really help. Please continue to always be the best tech magazine in the future.

4 Thanks for writing in Rudransh. The ultimate smartphone buying guide took a lot of brainstorming but we were glad that we could incorporate parameters such as resale value etc which most reviewers usually don't consider. Even if they do, there is no quantification like the kind we did. So yes we enjoyed coming up with it as much as you evidently enjoyed reading it. As for Tech Tips, it would be great if you could send us specific areas that need work. We would be happy to work your suggestions into the upcoming updates to the app. We hope you continue to be a part of digit for many more years to come.

✉ Hey Digit,
I'm the greatest fan of your magazine. I know that you guys get this every day but I owe you, guys big time. You'll understand why after I narrate my story.

I was an average Joe when it came to tech (maybe a bit lower than average... okay, way lower than average). I never knew what RAM was or that there were different types of operating systems (OS) on phones. All I knew was that Apple had an Apple OS and other phones had Android. I didn't even know what a graphics card was. I used to buy my phone by asking the shopkeeper for a phone which had touch, must be able to download games and social media apps and should have a good camera (I didn't even know that RAM, operating systems, screen resolutions and even different processors were to be considered when buying phones). By now, you've probably got an idea of how little I knew about tech. One day, however, I was going through different mags and found your mag among them. (It was the August 2014 issue in which different OSes were compared.) I bought it right away. At home, I found out that there were different OSes and then slowly discovered that there were different RAMs, processors and even motherboards, which I wasn't even aware were there in computers. This is why I owe you guys big time.

I'd like to make some suggestions:

1. Can you guys write an article on hacking (the different types of hacking, ethical hackers and the other types of hackers)?
2. Can you write an article on ways to hack Wi-Fi passwords (unless it's illegal)?

3. Can you please send posters of famous singers, DJs or rappers (Eminem, if you could)?
4. As I'm a game developer and a gamer, it would be great if you increased the page count of SKOAR! to 30 or 40.

Now I have one question for you: I downloaded a game and modified it in Windows using WinRAR, but when I converted it back to APK in the phone, it said that package cannot be downloaded. Then, I modified it in Ubuntu (Edubuntu). It started downloading, and then I got a message saying that it couldn't be downloaded. I made sure that all files were in the same format. Please tell me how to fix it.

Also, can you add Cash on Delivery on your subscription? If you do, you'll get yourself another subscriber.

And by the way, is any one of you guys an Eminem fan? Please answer.

Keep rocking like always.

4 That journey of discovery and learning you described is what most of us writers also experienced thanks to Digit. It just feels so awesome when all this tech
