Awaken the Force

A short guide to prepare yourself for the upcoming Star Wars movie

Are you a Star Wars fan? Whether yes or no, it doesn't really matter since you'll only be deemed worthy if you accomplish the following and get yourself acquainted with everything about Star Wars, well almost. There is no such thing as too much Star Wars, never forget.

Movies

Watch Episodes I - VI, twice! No thrice! Goddammit! Watch 'em till your eyes bleed. Those who're Star Wars virgins can be forgiven for thinking that the newer trilogy isn't blasphemous but if you think Jar-Jar was a titular character then you might as well jump out of the window. If you do manage to get your hands on the DVDs with the director's commentary then you won't regret it one bit.

Animated series

Aside from the movies, there have been multiple animated series over time and some of which have been declared cannon. But even the ones like The Clone Wars do elaborate upon certain elements of the mysticism that we know as the Force. Please skip episodes 15, 16 and 17 of season three for the sake of not #$$%@ing up one of the most central elements of the Star Wars universe.

Extended universe

Fan fiction isn't a recent thing and with a universe that originated in 1977, the fans sure have been busy coming up with backstories of every single important character and when that was done with, they went ahead and made up new characters and then elaborated upon their backstories as well. If you are indeed serious about plunging deep into the Star Wars universe then grab a hold of this timeline (<http://digit.in/SWCanonTimeline>) and start reading the novels in the proper order.

Jedi or Sith?

Conflicted ... you are ... young Padawan~ Pick a side ... you must! Take one of the numerous online personality quizzes or perhaps take two and figure out where your loyalties lie. Do you follow the righteous path or one that is wrought with destruction and mayhem? Or perhaps you don't fall in either category and you're more content being a Gundark in the jungles of Dromund Kaas. Pick a side!

Cosplay

Since you've come this far, you might as well walk the entire mile! Start off with picking a character that you'd like to emulate and dress like him/her or maybe even an it? Bonus points if you pick a species other than human. Extra bonus points if you can repurpose your mom's favourite curtain as your robe. You could even go about ruining Princess Leia like this dude alongside. Or you could even make some character up – Darth Dandelion?
