

worldview

OUR PICK OF THE BEST TECH ARTICLES FROM AROUND THE GLOBE

(MUST READS)

70 DAYS ON BED, FOR SCIENCE

When the news broke that NASA is paying $18k for lying down on the bed for 70 days, many applied but only one was selected. Andrew Iwanicki shares his experience of those 70 days and after.

<http://dgit.in/70DaysInBed>

INTERVIEWING THE CREATORS OF BB8

In an interview, BB8 creators Josh and Matt unveil the inspiration and inner workings of the BB8 robot. From the rough sketches to the finished eight BB8's that were made, they spill the beans out on everything about BB8.

<http://dgit.in/FathersofBB8>

THE ULTIMATE SOLUTION TO CLICKBAIT

If you are reading this just because of the headline, chances are you might have fell for click-bait yet again. So why do we easily fall prey to these curiosity building witty headlines floating on the internet? Learn how to avoid getting manipulated by them.

<http://dgit.in/Clickbaited>

ARE YOU LISTENING?

In a successful video, it's not only the appearance, camera angles and visuals that create that impact on your audience. It's high time you start "talking to your audience" to make sure you always have their attention. Pay very close attention to this art.

<http://dgit.in/YTLinguistics>

[Re/code Corner]

TO 'UPGRADE' OR TO NOT?

A lot of innovation and development goes in to make that almost perfect piece of technology and upgrades ensures it becomes more efficient. But are they actually an upgrade? More importantly, do we need that upgrade? You'd be surprised by the answer: <http://dgit.in/TechUpgrde>

Hey Siri, are we there yet?

The so called next big thing, virtual personal assistants like Siri, Cortana and Google Now seem to be getting more intelligent as well as proving to be much more useful, no doubt. But how long would we have to wait till we attain the total "digital nirvana"?

<http://dgit.in/AsstntProgChrt>

Self-driving cars teardown

With Google and Apple jumping in to build self-driving cars, what can we expect in the future? Who will they collaborate with? What could the car be like? This ultimate teardown of self driving cars has answers to these as well as many more questions.

<http://dgit.in/SDCarsTeardown>

Sync your second screen soon?

With Smart home and IoT developments rising everyday, can it also pack in the ability to synchronize all your screens automatically? Miss nothing as the future might be able to let you sync your Phone, TV, Notebook and many more screens.

<http://dgit.in/SyncUrDisplay>