

Azimut 66

Touted as the world's largest water-sports trade fair, the boot Düsseldorf 2016 is set to be a center stage for the best in yachts and boats. The Azimut 66 has our attention this time and boy, it does look amazing. Part of the Flybridge Collection, it's a mere 20m long yacht packing all the technical and luxury goodness from the classic collection. The flybridge area has been extended to make it more spacious and has been converted into a lounge. The signature shark's fin-shaped side windows stand out on the yacht, which has been designed by Stefano Righini. The hull has been constructed with carbon fibre making it lightweight. The interiors don't fall short in offering a premium experience, and the designer Carlo Galeazzi has made sure about efficiently using up the storage space. The Azimut 66 will let you cruise the oceans at an average speed of 28 knots although you can push the maximum speed of up to 32 knots. We aren't sure about the pricing of this masterpiece, but we are definitely sure that we won't be able to afford it.

We are a group of enthusiastic students from IIT, Delhi who are taking electric powered automobile technology to a higher level. AXLR8R Formula Racing Club, IIT, Delhi aims to design a Formula based electric car and participate in FSG16.

But this dream comes with a heavy cost.

Help us and contribute towards innovation.
Help us and contribute towards technology.
Help us and contribute to a better India.
