

TESTED: Gaming monitors

We lineup a dozen gaming monitors from four popular display manufacturers to tell you which one deserves to be on your rig

Bazaar

All the latest and greatest products tested and reviewed so you make an informed buying decision

THE UPSTREAM BATTLE

The battle to be the best video streaming service in India is well BATTLE and truly on. We compare eight services to tell you which one's the best of the bunch.

Prasid Banerjee
prasid.banerjee@digit.in

The video streaming wars are officially underway in India and the usual suspects are all lined up and amidst much talk and fanfare. The entry of Netflix into the market has put other streaming services on guard and while the world renowned service itself isn't perfect, to say that it's got competition in India would be a massive understatement.

You may have heard of apps like Hotstar, Spuul, Wyrk Movies and many others, all of which offer video streaming on demand. They all promise to offer you a seamless streaming experience at HD or more. Unfortunately, the best things in life have never been paid, so alluring as video streaming services may sound, they do cost quite a bit.

We'll discuss the question of Internet speeds and data consumption under a different section later, so let's stick to the services at the moment. It's an opportune time to compare these services to each other, trying to find out which one offers the most value for your money or performs the best. They can cost as much as ₹650 per month, which is no small price for an average Indian consumer.

The goal of these services is to replace your television and they stem from the fact that a big part of the world population today watches content online, rather than on a television screen. Don't get us wrong, TVs aren't going to die out just yet, but the way you watch content on your television may change sooner than you think.

But then again, content is not being streamed on the bigger screens alone, apps like Netflix, Hotstar and others are also available for mobile users. In fact, there are even video streaming apps that are meant only for mobiles. It's all happening and as a consumer, you have a lot to choose from. Well, the following comparison shall help.