Windows smartwatch!

You can now run Windows 7 on a smart watch, if you have three hours to boot it up. <http://dgit.in/windowssmartwatch>

How we unwindMidnight snacking in Noida

While on a trip to Noida to join the rest of our colleagues, we had a sudden hankering for food at 12am. Not that there's anything wrong with Noida, just that you can barely find anything to eat at night. After two and a half hours of mindless roaming with empty bellies, we finally found sandwich pakodas at 3:30am.

A team must watch GoT

A team must wait. Well, a team has waited an entire year and it's been well worth the wait. Season 6 of Game of Thrones hasn't disappointed yet, well, most of us haven't been. Monday lunch hour is now for GoT hour except for Mithun who prefers to watch it way before everyone else. So much for being a team player.

Burnin' for you

Special issues are always tough, and it's a tough period for all of us. Arnab's prayers to be relieved were answered sooner than everyone else's and not quite ending in respite. The poor guy has fallen prey to the pesky Aedes Aegypti and is now holed up in a hospital. We wish him a speedy recovery.

diGit DIARY

D... d... de... DEJA VU! Team Digit has achieved 80 per cent Drift compatibility i.e. people have started thinking along the same lines and have even begun blurting out the same sentences at the same dame time! Read in plural voice

Facebook live has now become a regular thing. The shy residents of the Mumbai Test Centre have begun broadcasting live sessions in the evenings. Something the Delhi team has been doing for quite some time. We've been looking at ways to get more views so much that there appears to be a little rivalry brewing. If you're ever in the mood to ogle at the cool gadgets we fiddle with, do keep an eye out on our Facebook page.

No diary entry is complete without highlighting our shenanigans in CS:GO. Well, we've been strategising... a lot. Aside from break times, there'd be the occasional 'a-ha' or the more common 'abey sunn' followed by strategy plans that would be discussed anywhere between 15 minutes to over an hour. Strategies are only helpful for the first few rounds, it's chaos after those initial rounds. We can almost say that we 'enable' comebacks... for the other team... sigh

And now, it's time for the interns. Ankush, apparently, has been compartmentalising information, i.e. he tells his folks that he is off to work and doesn't turn up at work. We believe he's spending quality time serenading someone. We'll soon find out. Meanwhile, Mehul's about to get the full wrath of everyone who've been unfortunate to proof-read his writing. Even Manish, the machine-less vagabond, who proof-reads Mehul's writing has given up on his search for components and is busy plotting his revenge. To Mehul's credit, he's been devouring books like The Elements of Style in a bid to improve his writing.
