

Top crowdfunding games that are yet to release

Shenmue 3

The much awaited sequel to the legendary Shenmue, a game which paved the way for many, it comes as no surprise that this game is being greatly anticipated. Shenmue is credited with being the first game to coin and make great use of quick time events or QTEs.

Star Citizen

Star Citizen is currently one of the most awaited games in the world, and it should be, it's the most crowdfunded thing ever, period. Currently sitting at around a $117,000,000 – yes that's a hundred and seventeen million dollars – the game has been delayed ever since december 2015 but we might hopefully see it next year.

Torment: Tides of Numenera

Another mammoth campaign on kickstarter, Tides of Numenera is easily among the top 5 most funded games of all times and is yet to grace us. We know we've had a lot of classic RPGs in this article already but we're sure one more good one won't do anyone any harm.

Battletech

Battletech is a turn-based strategy game that is scheduled to release next year. It's among the most funded projects of all time and not without reason. Furthermore, the guys who brought us Shadowrun are working on this one, so it's bound to be good, hopefully.

System Shock

When System Shock was pitched on kickstarter it very quickly became the most popular campaign on the site and amassed the required funding and then some in just 48 hours. Makes sense, if it's anything like the original System Shock, we'd definitely pay to see that happen again.

the name, it can get pretty twisted. The player has to switch between realms or worlds or dimensions or whatever you want to call them, you basically switch sisters to do this. On doing so the player gains access to a new set of abilities which he or she has to use in order to progress further. Players need to think fast and switch between worlds and abilities if they hope to have any chance of succeeding and with a great soundtrack to boot you shouldn't miss this one if you're a fan of platformers.

Superhot

Superhot is a game that was all the craze just a short while ago. The concept is like something out of a matrix movie and is actually super cool (see what we did there?). How the game works is time only moves when you do, so you're kind of in a state of perpetual bullet time. You can do a whole lot of interesting stuff within the game and there's different approaches to solving each level. It's one drawback is its price tag, but feel free to grab a copy yourself if it's on sale or if you're into games like this one. Also, the game constantly saying superhot superhot can get a tad bit annoying. *