

Whitehouse reporter busted!

A reporter at Whitehouse breifing was busted while playing Pokemin GO!
digit.in/PokeGoBusted

The Sputnik Auction

You can buy a fullscale operational model of Sputnik for $269,000
digit.in/buySputnik

3. We're working on it.
4. We'll look into it
5. If more people write in asking for a bump in gaming content, we'll be more than happy to oblige.

A gaming sketch artist is a niche within the whole game development sphere. I suggest you look at courses being offered by animation studios, gaming schools like DSK infocom. It would be a worthwhile pursuit for you to think about fine arts as well. Order past issues (with DVDs) from the Digit store: <http://store.digit.in/cart/>

–Siddharth

✉ Hello Team Digit,

It is a pleasure reading your magazines, Fast Tracks and dmystifys. The content of your magazines never ceases to amaze me.

Here are some things that I would like to point out to you guys:

- 1) Firstly, I want to thank the whole of Team Digit because without you people it would become quite difficult finding sound advice for tech related stuff and science "gyaan" in our country.
- 2) The DVD interface needs to change, but you know that and you are working on that. However, what needs urgent fixing is the way applications work on the disc. Everything is really slow and hangs.
- 3) Please make the Fast Tracks a bit more detailed. Eg. in the June issue, you had covered Android app development with 2-3 chapters just explaining how to set-up and initialize the sdk but there was no content provided which showed how to build a very basic app or something like the HelloWorld class in Java.
- 4) Providing Skoar as a separate volume was nice. I hope you guys bring it back.
- 5) Your magazine always comes in a packaged form. However, the poster that I received in the July issue was torn. I hope this doesn't happen in the future.
- 6) Finally, I would like to say that please don't stop the good work that you're doing, I appreciate it very much. Once again thanking Team Digit,

–Subham Verma.

📧 Hi Subham,

Thank you for taking the time to write to us. We love all your comments and feedback. Apologies for the torn poster. We'll send you a new one right away. About the FT, our aim is to take a reader from an absolute newbie to a reasonably well informed person in any given topic. IDEs have come a long way since the days of Borland Turbo C. When you fire up an IDE and start a new project, most of the times, a basic hello world is pre-written for you and you can straight away press the compile button to run it. In order to give a taste of more practical aspects we had Chapter 5 which was titled, "Developing your own App". In this chapter we covered a really simple RSS reader from inception to final compilation.

–Mithun

✉ Hey Team Digit, I am a regular reader of your magazine since two years now and am myself a tech enthusiast. Digit is like a part of my routine. I have made it a habit to read it all the time. In fact I have read each issue 2-3 times.

This month's (july) issue was a great one. The inclusion of Skoar into the main magazine was a good idea. It's better this way. The cover story was a great one and also the impress.ly website was a great thing. I already started working on it. And you know you guys should make the auto booklet (cars and bikes) a regular thing. All the E3 videos were my favourite part and also the dmystify on Life was a great mystery solver. But hey, where's Gangsta Granny? Error 404-Not Found... Well overall the issue was a bang. Thanks for publishing such an awesome magazine. Keep doing it till eternity. Best of Luck.

–Ronak Makbijani

📧 Hey Ronak,

Thanks for your feedback. We really appreciate it.

Glad you like the SKOAR! inside Digit idea. We did it to save on some production time, but even we are liking the way it sits with the mag. We wish we could do dgt auto every month, and maybe if enough people write in and ask for it, we will – providing we also get some advertisers on board to offset the rather significant additional costs.

I honestly don't know where Granny went. Maybe she was out bashing in the skulls of some console gamers with her rather bent umbrella. #PCMasterRace

;-)

–Robert

✉ Subject: You just LOST a reader!

The July issue was really amazing. First off, I really liked the dmystify this time. And hats off to Tharakaram G for the cover design for dmystify. About the magazine, it was really good, and I liked the cover story. It was a really nice idea to embed SKOAR! into the magazine. Overall, amazing work guys. But now, I want to tell about something I am getting disappointed of. The DVD! Well, already you have halved the number of DVDs, and this time, it was too much. Half of the DVD this month was filled with just trailers and F8 keynote. Instead, you should have given something else, like tutorials, programs etc. or something like those Reverse Engineering videos you gave a couple of months back. Other than this, I think you all are amazing.

Also, I have started writing Science Fiction short stories. I would REALLY like it if you (anyone of you) would read my stories and tell me how is it. Because I think you all are great writers and it's you all whom I consider my inspiration for writing. Here is the link to my Wattpad profile:

<https://www.wattpad.com/user/Shashu-Gupta>

And thanks in advance.

PS: Sorry for the misleading subject, I will always remain your reader. Ain't I cruel? ;-)

–Shashwat Gupta

📧 Smart. Very smart. A good way to get us to read this email instantly.

The DVD stuff was demanded by a lot of readers writing in. It is a lot harder to please readers with just one DVD, but we chose to put the money from the second DVD into dmystify, which, at least so far, seems to be universally liked.

We've long since known that trying to please everyone all of the time is impossible; instead, we try and please everyone some of the time, and hope for the best. :-)

We will check out your writing when we get a little free time and get back to you with our feedback.

If it's OK with you, we will publish that link in the mag and allow other readers to send you feedback as well.

–Robert