

you twice the XP than you'd get otherwise. At level 10 you get another "Lucky Egg" use it for the same purpose. From that point, you get the "Lucky Egg" after every 5 levels. So save your candies for the next Lucky egg.

- XP Breakdown
- 100 XP – Pokemon caught
 - 500 XP – New pokemon
 - 10 XP – Curve ball
 - 10 XP – Nice throw
 - 50 XP – Great Throw
 - 100 XP – Excellent throw
 - 50 XP – Checking in at a Pokesstop
 - 100 XP – Battling an opposing team's Pokemon trainer at a gym
 - 150 XP – Beating an opposing team's Pokemon trainer at a gym
 - 50 XP – Beat a pokemon in training (a gym already your team's color) at a gym
 - 200 XP – Hatch a pokemon
 - 500 XP – Evolve a pokemon

Save battery while playing

The struggle to save phone's battery for a day was real, and Pokemon Go exacerbated it. The game constantly sucks the battery juice that will not only hamper your gameplay but also leave you with a costly paper weight. We have a curtailed list of tricks that will help you make your battery last longer.

Activate the Lucky Egg only when you've enough Pokemons and candies.

Turn off AR

This augmented reality game will not offer the same experience if you turn off the AR, but it will definitely cut down on the battery consumption giving you some extra ingame time. A little toggle button appears at the topright corner of the screen while you're engaging with the Pokemon or while at the gym. Toggle it to turn off the AR.

Walk with your phone upside down

This is an excellent trick to save your battery while playing the game. While the game is open, if you turn your phone upside down, the screen will go dark with a faint Pokemon Go logo. The game will still run in the background, count your steps, and alert you with vibrations if any Pokemon arrives as you walk, but the screen won't consume any battery.

Turn off music and sound effects

In the gamesettings, you'll find option to turn off the music and sound effects. Similarly, turn off WiFi and Bluetooth, and turn down the screen brightness. Additionally, put your phone on power saving mode.

Choose your Eevee evolution

If you're trying to evolve Eevee, this is the trick you should be knowing. Eevee, usually, evolves randomly to Flareon, Jolteon, or Vaporeon. However, you can control this random nature and selectively evolve it to one of the three.

To do this, before evolving your Eevee, navigate to its profile, tap the pencil button next to its name. This allows you to give it a nickname. Type one of the following nicknames depending on the evolutions you prefer.

- Pyro = Flareon
- Rainer = Vaporeon
- Sparky = Jolteon

Rename your Eevee with one of the above names and hit "evolve". It will evolve to the creature associated with the name.

Use Razz Berry for easy catch

One of the secrets to capture an extremely rare Pokemon is by using Razz Berry. Razz Berry can be found under "Items" on the map. Collect them and use it in tandem with Great Balls and Ultra Balls. Razz Berry slows down the Pokemon that crosses your path, thus, making it easier for you to capture it. Just feed the Pokemon Razz Berry, take out your Pokeball and throw it.

Tap the pencil and type a name.

Earn free Pokecoins

Pokecoins are available as a part of in-app purchases. But, there is a better alternative that will let you earn these coins for free. You have to be over level 5 as this trick asks for one of your Pokemon to defend a gym that your team controls. Leave back a Pokemon to defend one of your gym. Raise its prestige level by winning enough battles at your gym. Additionally, you may also capture enemy gym and leave your Pokemon there to defend it. For every day your Pokemon guards the gym, you are awarded Pokecoins.

Navigate using Nearby Pokemon panel

The nearby Pokemon panel is a handy feature offered by

With AR (left), Without AR (right).