Weird Wide Web

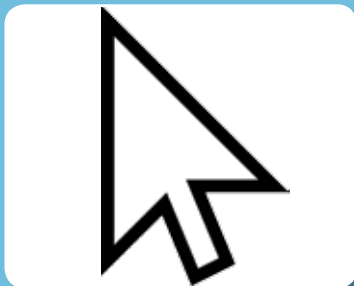

We've all spent hours on the Internet doing absolutely nothing, so here are ways to be entertained while still doing absolutely nothing

When you're REALLY bored

If you've delved deep into very depths of the Internet, then at some point or the other we're sure you must've come across this one. Here's what some call the very epicentre of the Internet. Enjoy.

Get to the point

Sometimes your pointer gets lost, at other times, it just hides from you. For those times, you can point at the pointer and watch the pointer point at your pointer while you point at the pointer. Do you get the point? No? Visit the site now.

You're getting old

All you need to do here is put in your date of birth and the website will do the rest for you. Rather than spoil it for you, you should just check it out for yourselves and see the magic first hand, aye?

For your relaxation

The Internet can get tiring at times, we know all about it (sort of). We spend pretty much ALL of our time online, so it's a nice change to relax once in a while. And what better way to that than with some ambient and soothing sounds. Which you can mess around with might we add.

The pull on this one

Gravity is a strong force. For example, take this game about gravity. It had such a strong pull we were stuck messing around with it for quite a while. Puns apart, you can spend hours on this just for fun, or keep experimenting with gravity points and the patterns they generate.

Choose your story

It's as simple as that really, a community driven website where you can choose your own adventure style story. You know, the kind where you make decisions at the bottom of the page before going further. If online interactive fiction is your thing, check this out.
