Unwind

How we unwind

The Cursed Child

You've got to be crazy to think that none of us got our hands on the latest Harry Potter. It was Arnab who made an impulse purchase one weekend, and then he promptly disappeared for two days. Although the book is not exactly upto the standards of Rowling's originals, it is a rivetting read for all true Potterheads!

Mass Effect

God bless Steam sales! One fine weekend we woke up to Mass Effect and its first sequel on sale. Siddharth, Manish and Arnab gave in and got their copies. Arnab is still on his mission to return to gaming and is pretty excited about this series. Siddharth, on the other hand, just wanted another one for his collection. Show off!

Gorilla Punch!

Goorrira punch. Gooooorrrraa epawnch. Gorrrira SUPER PAWNCH! Gorrrira Lunch? Gorrrira munch, gorrrira jump, gorrrira crunch. Gorrrira robo-punch. Gorrrira punch-no-from-ze-back. Mid-air gorrrira punch, speciar-edition rimited-time onry, Gorrrira punch

digit DIARY

We've picked up the slack this month. Sort of. After the procrastination induced crunch we've had these past few months during closing, we decided not to risk it this time and close a week early. All that happened was we ended up procrastinating a week earlier; nothing changed. Sigh. We had no interns to help out this month either, so we didn't have anyone to force the grunt work onto. Don't judge us, that's what interns are for okay.

Mithun wasn't with us for most of closing as he had gone off to San Francisco for an event. This also happened to be his first time in the States. If it wasn't evident enough, it became evident when he went looking for drinking water all over his hotel in the middle of the night, melting ice from an ice dispenser for water. Anyone who's ever been to North America (or any developed nation for that matter) knows that tap water is potable. To add to that, he also had to get used to having to wipe his derriere with a piece of paper. Live and learn, as Sam Gamgee's gaffer used to say, aye?

Now normally when people go to the States, there's a long list of things to buy. Jayesh and Siddharth decided they would use this opportunity to buy themselves some underwear. Yes, you read that right, underwear. Pretty sure the stuff they'll end up getting will be made over here or in China anyway.

Both Manish and Arnab have finally gotten themselves internet connections at their respective homes. While Arnab is enjoying his connection by indulging in quality YouTube content, Manish has gone back into his alternative online gaming reality.

We've also found a new place for our snacking needs. After hearing much about the place from Siddharth, a Hearsch Bakery finally opened up here in Chembur and we were all excited to try it out for ourselves and see if it was actually worth all the praise. We weren't disappointed at all, and we were more than happy to add another name to our short list of "good places to get snacks from".

For those of you don't know, Nikhil Punjabi often handles his uncle's Ola business, and we've often discussed in detail about the working of these Cab Service apps. So who better to ask than someone who actually has first-hand experience. The looks on our faces when we learned about the monies his uncle makes, well, let's just say it's not a small amount. We all decided to start our own Taxi Service after realising how easy it was, but that was only momentary, after we realised about all the other things *cough* we're lazy*cough* we'd need to get started. We'd probably end up stacking huge taxi bills for our own wallets!
