

ZEI^o

One flip to track them all

The ZEI^o is an interesting time tracking device which makes time tracking simple and fun. You can connect the ZEI^o to your smartphone, tablet, or computer through an app which works on MacOS, Windows, Linux, iOS, and Android. Time-tracking is normally a boring job. Filling in timesheets seems a bit redundant when it feels like a waste of time. This is where the ZEI^o comes in. With some help from the ZEI^o, you can manage your time efficiently and wisely throughout the day. The ZEI^o is a polygon device, so it's got eight faces. Each of the eight faces on the ZEI^o can be assigned to a particular task or project. Now these tasks could be anything, from emails, to coffee breaks, to social media like Facebook or Twitter, or an actual work project or assignment, you decide which face is assigned to which task. All you need to do is flip the ZEI^o over to have the task you're currently doing face upwards. When you're done with that task or project, just flip the ZEI^o to have whatever you plan to do next face upwards. The ZEI^o will automatically stop tracking the previous task and start tracking the new task or assignment. Easy right? The polygon keeps track of exactly how much time you spend on each of those tasks, after which you can analyze the data in detail on the app. Additionally, you can use the mobile app to adjust and edit tracks on the go, just incase you forgot to maybe stop tracking or flip the ZEI^o over. Take charge of your time with the ZEI^o and ensure you never overrun your Facebook timings.

LVL

The LVL is a wearable hydration monitor that tracks not only your hydration, but your sleep, mood, heart rate, and other activities as well to give you a complete assessment of your health at all times. Keeping yourself hydrated is something a lot of us tend to forget and we often need someone to constantly remind us to stay hydrated. The LVL gives you real time hydration notifications and even sweat rate notifications. It then prompts you in real-time telling you to how much fluid you need to intake to stay hydrated the kind of performance boost you'd gain from doing so. You get all of this in addition to the things you'd normally get from a fitness wearable, such as a heart rate monitor, a step tracker, smart coaching, etc. The LVL can also read your mood, and comes with an autosleep and smart alarm functions.

We all know that sleep is one of the most important parts of the day. The LVL can actually help you sleep better by letting you know how much liquid you need for a good night's sleep! It's available in three different strap variations, ranging from Silicone, to Brown Leather and Black Leather.