

Mi 5s Sense ID

Xiaomi Mi 5s/5s Plus has Qualcomm's Sense ID ultrasonic fingerprint sensor.
<http://dgit.in/XiaomSenseID>

Hangouts disabled

Hangouts comes disabled on the new Pixel phones, making way for Google Allo and Duo.
<http://dgit.in/HangotDs>

Weird Wars

There's been over 14,500 wars since 3600 BC in recorded history, so it's not surprising that there's a few unusual and weird ones in the mix...

The Three Hundred and Thirty Five Years War

Officially, one of the longest wars ever; it was "fought" between the Netherlands and the Isles of Scilly between 1651 to 1986. Oh, and there were no casualties or shots fired. Yep. That's the way we like our wars.

<http://dgit.in/335yearwar>

The shortest war, like evarr

The Anglo-Zanzibar War of 1896 which was fought between the United Kingdom and the Zanzibar Sultanate is the shortest war on record, lasting an exhausting 38 minutes, with a little over 500 casualties. Now that's a quickie not worth having.

<http://dgit.in/zanzibarwar>

The Pig War

The Pig War of 1859 is one of the most unusual wars in history, and not just because of its name. It's called the Pig War because it was literally caused by a pig, which also happened to be the only casualty in this war. Poor pig. :(

<http://dgit.in/hogwar>

Jenkins's Ear is a big deal

The ear in question belonged to English Sea Captain Robert Jenkins, who lost it when the Spanish Coast Guard boarded and searched his ship. The English were apparently so angry when he returned with his ear in a jar that they declared war on Spain for it. Oh well.

<http://dgit.in/jenkinsear>

The "Battle" of Karansebes

So in this "battle", the army of Austria – which was out scouting the Ottoman army – got drunk and fired at each other. The Turks arrived two days later to 10,000 dead and wounded soldiers, and proceeded to easily take Karansebes.

<http://dgit.in/runturks>

The Great Emu War

In 1932 the Emu population in Australia was getting out of hand, so the Australian military sent in a force of soldiers armed with machine guns to take em out. They even kind of declared war on them. Funniest part is they actually lost the war. Emu's are tough birds.

<http://dgit.in/emuwar>