

Thank you Edward

Edward Henning
Editor-in-Chief, Digit
(2008 to 2009)

This blank column is being printed as a mark of respect for Edward Henning, who isn't around to give us his "Last Word" anymore.

Edward joined us as Editor-in-Chief in 2008, with decades of computing and journalism experience under his belt. Those of us who worked with him learnt a lot from him. He loved India and Nepal, had a passion for translating ancient Sankrit documents, and loved Indian cuisine. This month we were devastated when he lost his battle with cancer. He was his regular witty, funny, and stoic self right until the very end. Even after so many years, he kept in touch and was always willing to help out Digit in any way.

You will be missed old friend.
