

Apology

It has come to our notice that some subscriber copies of the Digit March 2017 issue are missing certain components from the pack. Please accept our sincere apologies for the inconvenience caused. To those readers affected by this oversight on our part we have dispatched replacement copies immediately.

Inbox

science especially Biology, were treated as poorer cousins. As a Biology PG and with a long career in environment and pollution, I feel happy to see these areas getting their due attention in digit.

I have been thinking about a few ideas in the field of bio and enviro technologies which could result in a few (at the least 4) Dmystify editions.

I love digit and the changes it has been going through with the changing times. So all the best to Digit.

– Anirudha Cheoolkar

d Thanks for noticing Anirudha. In fact in this edition you'll find a report on the various techniques being employed to resurrect an extinct species. As an expert in the field we'd love to hear your feedback on the same. As for the dmystify topics, please do send us your ideas and we can take the conversation forward.

– Siddharth

✉ I was a very casual reader of the digit until I took seriously the January 2017 issue of the magazine. Back story: I was introduced to the magazine on August 2013 on a bookstore at a railway station when the phrase "Invisible Technology" on the cover (of July 2013 issue) grabbed my attention.

With the new year I resolved to regulate the number of hours I spend online, which gave me more time to do things. I started with the January '17 issue welcomed with an article upon writer's vision on tech trends for 2017 written by Mr. Parwatay. The very next one written by Mr. Smith tends to be more on how a political event affects technology which in turns results in some socio-economic impact. Above two left me astonished about the wide variety of content you serve to the reader and pushed me to continue reading. Then, came the section (enter) which motivated me to write this mail. The flow-chart like depiction of a thought-provoking article on e-books was a good idea and the back-story pointed out in this article inspired me to write my own.

Finally! The realization of how I was keeping myself away from knowledge pushes me to read the older editions of the magazine that I already have. So, I'll be writing to you based on my experience with them, if that is fine (considering things may go irrelevant at times as I'll be reacting on the older issues of the magazine)?

Note: There is one problem though - reduce the glossiness of the magazine!

– Chandresh S

d Ahh yes the good old new year's resolution. But glad to see you sticking to it and even more glad that we are playing a part in your "awakening" of sorts. As for your offer to send feedback on older issues – a resounding "hell yeah!". We'd love to hear your thoughts, criticisms and any other feedback you may have.

– Siddharth

✉ Hi Team Digit I want to tell you DIGIT IS THE BEST TECH MAGAZINE IN THE UNIVERSE! It's been six months now since I started reading your magazine and I still remember the day I got my first issue (august 2016). Actually, my father subscribed to it as my birthday present. When my father noticed I was reading magazines too much, he took up an issue of digit and opened it, I could see his eyebrow raise in astonishment and at that time my birthday was nearing so he subscribed to digit as my birthday present.

Some suggestions:

- 1) Why don't you change the digit logo and give a little tech-like look.
- 2) Why don't you give some articles on the history of some technology devices, like how apple computers were started.

Also, when I received this month's issue (march 2017), the poster and the FastTrack was missing from the packet, please help me, as I am dying to see this month's poster!

Once again, I want to thank you for making me who I am. BEST OF LUCK

– Archit Mishra

d Sorry about the poster and FastTrack mix up. Hopefully you'll have received our replacement copy long before you are reading this. Thanks for your kind words! Keep Digitizing.

– Siddharth

LETTER OF THE MONTH

✉ Hey, I've been a frequent reader of your magazine for the last two years and always got my issue with no problems whatsoever. Today I received my March issue and only to find it with pages missing. Also the pages were flipped. Considering that your magazine costs higher than others, There should have been a better quality inspection.

And No, I don't want to download the app for the e-book copy.

Now that we're complaining already, will like to add that this is possibly the worst cover story idea with all the Normie memes from 2013. 1/10, not dank at all and so cringe worthy. Could have asked me instead fam, I have a dank stash of freshly picked creamy memes always at my disposal. Absolutely Disgusting Normie.

– Shivanand Pegu

d Hey fam, You're right. Our memes weren't dank enough. But get ready to cringe some more cuz we were doin ourselves a heckin nostalgia. We have failed our Kekistani brothers and let down Pepe. We had to make do with pleb memes from like, forever ago. We know, we know, absolutely barbaric. We'll be sure to do you a bamboozle if we ever get access to your stash of dank memes in the future.

– Team Digit