

Selling space secrets

Engineers at Boeing Satellite Development Center admits trying to sell space secrets to Russians. Read more: <http://dgit.in/BoeingSpy>

Bitcoin is $2000 already

Bitcoin is currently worth over $2,251 and its rise is nowhere near over. The digital currency continues to grow. <http://dgit.in/Bitcoin2300> ies. The Indian Cosplay Community (<http://dgit.in/IndCosCom>) and Cosplay League India (<http://dgit.in/CosLealn>) are quite active in the cosplay scene where like-minded enthusiasts discuss the latest cosplay happenings in the country including events and workshops. Speaking of workshops, they are conducted in various cities as well as during Comic Con and other events hosted by popular cosplayers before the main event. The cosplay scene in India isn't just limited to the metro cities, participants pour in from all over the country. Here are few of the cosplay events and competitions that you should keep an eye on:

- Anime Con (<http://www.animeconindia.in>)
- Comic Con (<http://comicconindia.com>)
- Cool Japan Festival (<https://www.cooljapanfestival.com>)
- DewArena (<https://play.eslgaming.com/india/dewarena>)
- ESL India Premiership (<https://play.eslgaming.com/india>)
- Indian Championship of Cosplay (<http://comicconindia.com/indian-championship-of-cosplay>)
- Indian eSports Championship (<http://www.iesportschampionship.com>)
- The ROG Masters (<https://www.rog-masters.com>)
- The Taiwan Excellence Gaming Cup (<http://www.tegamingcup.com/>)
- World Cosplay Summit (<http://www.worldcosplaysummit.jp/en>)

ATTEND GAMING EVENTS

Gaming tournaments in the country have been on the rise and eSports seems to have quite a bright future ahead. Prominent events such as the ESL India Premiership, DewArena, ROG Masters, etc., have been receiving good traction from gamers. Teams from across the subcontinent have been participating in these events where the final legs are organised in different cities. The matches are regularly broadcasted live over Facebook, Twitch and YouTube but watching them play live brings in a different level of excitement. Whether you're a CS:GO or Dota 2 fan – if you love watching insane strategies and skills, attending a live eSports tournament has to be on your bucket list. Look out for the following upcoming eSports events this year:

- The Taiwan Excellence Gaming Cup – Season 4 (<http://www.tegamingcup.com/>)
- Zowie Extremesland CS:GO Event – Season 2 (<https://www.lxgindia.com/events/zowie-india-extremeslands-cs-go-2016/#p1>)
- The ROG Masters – Season 2 (<https://www.rog-masters.com>)
- Indian eSports Championship (IeSC) – Season 2 (<http://www.iesportschampionship.com>)
- The Dew Arena – Season 2 (<https://play.eslgaming.com/india/dewarena>)
- ESL India Premiership – Second Edition (<https://play.eslgaming.com/india>)

Playing graphics heavy games do require powerful hardware and if your potato PC can't handle the beefy games, don't worry. Because you guys have shown tremendous interest in playing video games, the cyber cafes of your school/college days and newer chains like the League of Extraordinary Gamers and Havok Nation now offer gaming rigs, installed with the latest hardware, which are capable of handling the most recent triple A titles. So, if you've been dying to try out new games in ultra settings, head over to cyber cafes. It was long since the good old days of SKOAR! Gaming Expo that we got to witness a gaming event. Indian Games Expo (<http://dgit.in/IGX2017>) was kicked off to serve as a place for gamers to come down and have a hands-on experience with the latest games on consoles and PCs. The next edition of IGX will be held on 18-19 November this year in Mumbai, so make sure you attend. Then we got to see the Indian Gaming Show (<http://www.gamingshow.in>) being organised on an even larger scale that brought many studios and international developers to the event.

GO FOR POWER USER MEETUPS

#NotAllGeeks are socially awkward and many of them do love meeting other people, fellow geeks to be precise. Meetups are essentially the best way for geeks to assemble and exchange ideas.

Quora is an active community where meetups are conducted in several cities. These aren't official meetups organised by Quora but members voluntarily meeting up. Usually, popular Quora writers and also renowned people from the industry are invited to speak at the meetups. Announcements are usually made on Quora (<http://dgit.in/QuoraMtp>). Since the meetups aren't official, with enough participants, you can also organise them too.

Meetups are also hosted by Redditors across most major cities. Although unofficial meetups are still a thing, Reddit organises global meetups every year. This year the Global Reddit Meetup Day is on June 17, and you can check out this thread (<http://dgit.in/RdtMtp>) to follow up with your city's subreddit. If you don't see it listed, well you should probably try to host one in your city - who knows, you might just start off a successful annual event.

