

THIS IS TECHNOLOGY, CULTURE AND SCIENCE WITH A DIFFERENCE, AND THAT DIFFERENCE IS USUALLY ENOUGH TO MAKE MOST NORMAL PEOPLE GO "WTF?"

What the Fudge?

PREPARE TO SCRATCH THAT HEAD OF YOURS: This month we try and figure out where all this Microsoft bashing came from, and how it all got started. Then there's your favourite DGT section filled to the brim with wacky and sexy gadgets...

Anatomy of daydreaming

Researchers find that an average person's mind wanders most frequently (about 65% of the time) during personal grooming activities, and least often (about 10%) while having intercourse. One of the main causes of accidents in our daily lives is the result of daydreaming.
<http://dgit.in/daydreamN>

WHAT'S NEW

A chess puzzle worth million dollars

If you have a penchant for problem-solving and love to play chess, then you simply can't pass up an offer to net $1 Million for doing just that, can you? Folks from the University of St. Andrews and the Clay Mathematics Institute recently came up with a unique chess puzzle that is available for anyone to solve. And if you do manage to do so, then the Clay Mathematics Institute will be more than happy to hand over a million dollars to the first person to successfully solve it. The puzzle holds the key to unlock many other impossible problems which include breaking complex cryptography ciphers. It's not the easiest million dollars to get though, because researchers estimate that this particular problem could take thousands of years to solve! The problem is really just a scaled up version of the Queens Puzzle.

<http://dgit.in/MillionChess>

New tool for spontaneous travellers

Airfare forecasting app Hopper's new 'Flex Watch' feature makes it easier than ever to find the cheapest flight deals. 'Flex Watch' is an in-app feature that helps travellers find travel plans at the best price deals without worrying about the actual destination. Yes, you read that right, plan a vacation without even knowing where you're going!

The app (Hopper) starts by asking you when and for how long you plan to travel. You can specify your dates or even keep things totally open-ended by saying 'anytime'.

You can then select the results board to 'anywhere' or specify continents/regions and the app will spontaneously compare the cheapest flight options and trip plans for you. You can also add multiple destinations at once and the app will automatically give you selections of different cities sorted by price. You have to check it out if you're planning a vacation:

<http://dgit.in/FlexWatch>

A pillow that always stays cold

There is a new smart pillow pad that can not only monitor your sleeping patterns but also adjust the pillow's temperature throughout the night. Founded by a smartup named Moona, you can back this project on Kickstarter right now for $249.

<http://dgit.in/ColdPillow>

Build toilets; get electricity

In UP, the government has reportedly been threatening to cut off power in villages without toilets, where people are still pooping in the open. The government also threatens to withdraw ration cards and pension payments for the same reason.

<http://dgit.in/poopLight>

Copyrighted tattoos

Many tattoo artists often copyright their tattoos. However, did you know that one implication of such a copyright could prevent you from removing the tattoo from your own body? Laws can be pretty weird sometimes, and really get under your skin!

<http://dgit.in/tattooLaw>