

GEEK CULTURE IS OUR WAY OF LIFE, AND ENCOMPASSES MOVIES, GAMES, COMICS, AND TRENDS FROM ACROSS THE GLOBE

BUILD IT BETTER

THIS MONTH IN CULT:

We had our hands full with a bunch of trailers for movies we've anticipated for a long while. But if you need to get some work done, explore how to build a career in CAD and CAE. And while you're building your next project, find out why Project Treble is probably the saviour that Android has been awaiting.

New beginnings after Avengers 4

Director James Gunn has said that once we have wrapped up with Phase 3 of the MCU, which ends after the sequel of Infinity War, a new story will be written after that. The next phase, Phase 4 will officially kick off with Guardians of the Galaxy Vol. 3.

<http://dgit.in/MCUPhs4JG>

WHAT'S NEW

New trailers: Justice League, Black Panther and more

The month of November is going to be a great month for superhero fans, since Thor: Ragnarok and Justice League open up. To hype things up, Warner Bros. released the final trailer for JL that further shows Steppenwolf's wrath unleashed on the DCEU. In December, The Last Jedi is going to tell us about Rey's parents, who exactly is Snoke and more stuff teased in the trailer. In the latest Black Panther trailer, we see more of Wakanda and the villain of the movie (who is suited up as well). Also anticipated is Pacific Rim: Uprising. From the trailer, the movie seems to deliver what we absolutely loved in the original: Giant robots kicking, pile driving monsters bigger than them.

Is Blade Runner 2049 a flop?

Predicted to start off with an opening weekend of around $50 million, Blade Runner 2049 made only $32.7 million. After three weeks of release, the sequel has been able to gross around $81.9 million at the box office. Although it's already a success compared to recent sci-fi movies, the budget of $150 million is yet to be recovered.

The first Blade Runner movie made $6 million at the box office opening with a total budget of $28 million. They were only able to break-even after decades of re-releasing different cuts of the movie. The movie built a cult following through the years. This time, poor ticket sales could be because of its 163 minutes running time and the necessity to have watched the original. That would mean spending close to five hours to watch both the movies which seems too much for newcomers to the franchise. If you ask us, we enjoyed the movie's incredible visuals and how new dimensions were added to the original story. All this without even glancing at our watches for once.

<http://dgit.in/BR2049BO>

Han Solo movie gets a name

The Star Wars spin off movie based on the early years of Han Solo finally has a name. Director Ron Howard took to social media to announce the title "Solo: A Star Wars Story" after wrapping up production of the movie, which has a release date of May 25, 2018.

<http://dgit.in/SoloHanRH>

Ruffalo accidentally streams Ragnarok

While at the premiere of Thor: Ragnarok, Mark Ruffalo was building up excitement for the movie by going live from his Instagram account. But he forgot to end the live stream, where the viewers were able to listen to the opening scenes of the movie.

<http://dgit.in/MRuffTR>

Pennywise had eaten a baby in IT

The record breaking horror movie had a flashback scene where the shapeshifter Pennywise was seen eating a baby. This deleted scene was mentioned by actor Bill Skarsgard who played the role of Pennywise, and a Reddit thread also came up explaining the scene.

<http://dgit.in/PnnwsIT>