Massive repair costs

Before you think about buying the iPhone X, you need to keep the repair costs in check. A broken screen repair will burn a hole of $279 in your wallet, while a cracked back panel (covered under "other damage") will set you back by a staggering $549.

Screen burn-in

Adding an OLED screen brings with it the problem of burn-in which is seen on other devices as well. The only solution to this is to lower the brightness of the screen and reduce the time it takes for the screen to turn off.

Face unlock in the dark

With the TrueDepth camera system, you will be able to unlock the iPhone X with your face even in complete darkness. This is possible with the flood illuminator that throws infra-red (IR) light on your face and the IR dot projector projects a grid of dots on your face, making it easier for the front camera to recognise your face.
