

THAT'S NOT AI!

STOP CALLING IT AI ALREADY, BECAUSE THE SMARTEST SOFTWARE TODAY IS DUMBER THAN MY DOG!

It's not even 2018 yet (going by when I'm writing this) and I'm already fed up of the buzzword of the year. Everywhere I turn I see bold proclamations of AI-this and AI-that. It's almost like every mom-and-pop store (also called startups by many) is screaming about how they've got AI doing so and so, and why it's better than the other mom-and... err... startups...

I get the same emails that Robert does, and I have the advantage of writing my whinge after I read his, and he's being far too nice!

The press releases I get seem to be written by an AI, because they're that dumb! Pretty much every single one will mention "AI" far too often, more even than the company name, which is almost shocking! It's like they're hoping we will put up the press release as is, and SEO their name with the word AI... thankfully, we've still got humans working here who cannot be fooled that easily.
