

Russian torpedo drone confirmed

Russia has an underwater drone with a 100-megaton nuclear bomb as the payload.
<http://digit.in/nukedronesub>

Rage against the killer robots

Experts from around the world have called for a ban on lethal autonomous weapons systems.
<http://digit.in/banlaws>

Research into unmanned vehicles and robotics for military use is increasing, indicating that the future of warfare is autonomous.

Aditya Madanapalle | aditya@digit.in Georgia Tech used these Zephyr drones to check out what would happen if two drone swarms were made to fight each other.

The Tapas 201, previously known as the Rustom-II is a UAV developed by the DRDO, with the potential for combat capabilities.

The DARPA sea Hunter is an unmanned surface vehicle that can be equipped for anti-submarine warfare.

This artistic impression of a battlefield of the future by BAE Systems shows tanks at the heart of the action supported by fleets of aerial vehicles and troops.

The Howe and Howe RS2-H1 SMET "pack bot" can carry about 450 kg of supplies through various kinds of terrain.

The QinetiQ MAARS is a robot with motion sensors and night vision cameras that can be equipped with weapons.

The Bluefin Robotics Proteus II is a submarine that can be configured to operate in manned as well as unmanned configurations.