

Buzz

New and happenings from around the web

Apple's streaming service

Apple has signed in Warner Music which should see its music on the upcoming iTunes streaming service which is cloud based

✉ I have been an avid reader of Digit for almost a year and I have learnt a lot from it. Thanks to one of my friends for this. This is my first letter. The writing and the graphics editing in Digit is aspiring. It has finally convinced me to pursue my career in ICT. I wanted to read about Dreamweaver and HTML, and I get to know about these interesting topics from your magazine

- Wasim Akram Khan

✉ Thanks for writing in Wasim. Glad we could help you make a career decision. Wish you the very best of luck in your career.

- Siddharth

✉ I am a regular digitian for past 8 years and I like your articles very much. Especially this month "you will pay for that" personally I am not in favour of piracy, but in my childhood I used to buy pirated games. Now that I'm working, I never buy such stuff. I want to purchase genuine games, but I am not able to find any stores. It would be a great help if you could suggest some good online stores. One more request could you not publish more news about PC games.

- Bhanu Pratap

✉ It's good to know that you have decided to go for original software and games. There are lots of online stores which sell and deliver games in India such as games4u.com or flipkart.com, you can even try ebay.in for latest releases. We will try and increase the gaming related news in the issues that follow.

- Nimish

✉ I'm an avid reader of your magazine, you guys are just awesome, it's just due to you that even local assemblers contact me for help. I am in class 12 and I've started out a consultancy firm, it's more for hobby than any profit, but I make sure not to disappoint my clients, check out my web site: <http://wix.com/prateekg/itsolutions>. Once again words are less to thank you.

- Prateek Gupta

✉ First of all it's readers like you who make us proud, we're really happy to know that Digit helped in increasing your tech knowledge and you're using it to develop your own business. Our best wishes for it.

- Nash

✉ You are my teacher. A year ago I was just a kid in computer knowledge. Then you entered my life as a teacher. You taught me not only about computers but also electronics. Because of you I got interested in computer products and I became a computer tech. Thank you Digit! Each and every thing in Digit is very useful for me. The Bazaar Mini helps with the prices, advantages and disadvantages of products. Then the article "Security Threats you should know about" in the April 2011 issue was amazing. Fast Track and Tips and tricks help very much. I have a small request for an article on "Dual monitors and devices used for it" Once again thank you for all the valuable and updated information.

- Amrit Das

✉ We're glad that Digit nurtured you into a geek. Happy to know that you liked the cover story last month. As for your request we've done articles on dual monitors in the past, however a refresher might be required. Look out for it.

- Sambhav

✉ I have been an avid fan of Digit ever since my father introduced it to me when I was in 7th standard way back in 2003. I've never been let down by digit in anyway.

I'm doing my second year in chemical engineering now and as a student, I do most of my magazine reading on the fly. Majority of my internet browsing is also while on the move with the help of my N79. I have a habit of checking out all the links given in Digit. They are really great!

Since I use my phone for this, and since typing on the alphanumeric keypad is a slight pain, I request you guys to please start using QR codes for those links in your magazine. It would really help and at the same time, it would be like a new innovation to the field of magazines, educating people with what is new.

- Siddharth Sonti
BITS Pilani

ERRATA

In the Security Suite test held in April, the name in the table for eScan's security product should have read as eScan Internet Security Suite Version 11.x