The HP Officejet 6500A

One of the best of its kind

The HP 6500A Plus is part of HP's Officejet e-All-in-Ones (eAIO) and 'ePrinting' series. This HP printer lets you print documents via e-mail. It comes with inbuilt apps that range from printing business documents to printing a tic tac toe game. It has a 250-sheet input tray capacity and a 35-page automatic document feeder (ADF). Another notable feature of this printer is the inclusion of automatic duplexing. The glossy black exterior gives the printer a very upmarket but clichéd look.

A 2.3-inch resistive touchscreen is built into the front panel of the printer. The overall build of the device is extremely sturdy and solid. The UI isn't smooth thanks to the resistive touchscreen, but the touch-sensitive buttons make up for the loss by being very responsive. We did experience some lag at times, especially while trying to connect to our router.

Regarding its performance, it scored 7 out of 10 in our text print quality test and took 28.20 secs to print the text file at the highest resolution. In our mixed document print quality test, the printer managed to score a total of 6.7 out of 10 and took 41.24 secs to output the print of the file at highest resolution. The printer managed to output a good photo print, and copying speed and quality was decent as well. With good print quality and the plethora of features it offers, the HP 6500A Plus is worth considering for those searching for an MFD.
