

split-screen in action

two different sites at once. If 40 open tabs weren't enough, you can now literally double the number of sites you view simultaneously. Just imagine a boring spreadsheet on one page, YouTube on the other. Work and play at the same time, what more could you ask for?

Quotes Book

Running out of quotes for that epic speech you're preparing?

QuotesBook

This is the app for you. This Chrome App is nothing more than a veritable quotencyclopedia; allowing you to search and pick the ideal quote. Download the app at <http://dgkit.in/VLw5IH>

Save to Google Drive

This is one of the most useful productivity enhancing apps that we've come across. Its working is very similar to other site/article archiving utilities like Evernote but with a twist. Just install the plug-in from <http://dgkit.in/ZcCTon> and hit the button. The extension will scroll through the entire webpage that you are viewing and take snapshots, compiling them into one large image that will be saved to your Google drive.

Tab.bz

Not closing your browser because there are too many tabs open and you don't know which ones you want? Want to save a collection of articles for later use? Tab.bz is the ideal tool for you. This handy extension (<http://dgkit.in/VLw1GH>) will package all your open tabs into one link that you can share, save or do whatever you want with. There are privacy issues though, where if you accidentally create a tab package with some private tabs, the link is not immediately deleted; so use with caution.

StayFocusd

This extension's sole purpose is to make sure that you're actually working at your PC. You can download the plugin at <http://dgkit.in/RzwOdB>. After installation, you will need to setup the plugin. There are a myriad of settings to choose from and they are surprisingly comprehensive. Some of the functions of this plugin are as follows:

- Set a blacklist and whitelist from the sites you regularly visit.
- Allot a fixed amount of time in total for your blacklisted sites, access to which will be
