To-do lists

This is a simple yet efficient extension to amp up those simple to-do lists, sync them online and across devices. Download and install the Any.do Chrome extension from Chrome Webstore.

- Add the extension and find it at the top-right corner of your browser window.
- Click on it to reveal a drop-down menu.
- You either sign-up for an account or login with your Facebook credentials.

That's it. Now start adding the to-do items by clicking on the blue icon on the top-right corner of the Chrome browser window. If you're a heavy Gmail user, you'll be happy to know that Any.do's Chrome extension is deeply integrated into the Gmail inbox, letting you create tasks out of them, which can then be added to Any.do and synchronised across devices.

In your Gmail inbox, you can click the "Remind Later" button on any email that you want to add to the Any.do to-do list.

Give Any.do a try on Google Chrome, it's a nice little personal assistant helping you organize your life, one browsing session at a time.

Privacy Fix

The Internet is notorious for wanting to track your browsing habits – well, not the internet per se, most of the websites that we tend to visit. Often tracking websites collect browsing data to analyse user behaviour, and most of them do this without acknowledging the fact to unsuspecting users. If you want to navigate the privacy landmines of the

Privacyfix is an eye-opener

Internet highway effectively, Privacy Fix is one Google Chrome extension you have to start using immediately.

- Search for "privacyfix" in Chrome's webstore. Add the extension to your browser, and notice the square icon labelled "fix" appear in the top-right bar of Chrome.
- Enable the Healthbar to see privacy ratings as you visit websites.
- In the dropdown, hit on 'Settings' to let Privacyfix show its true colours.

- The extension now redirects you to the privacyfix.com website where it gives you a quick overview about your privacy settings on Facebook, Google, popular websites that share data, tracking cookies, and explains the Healthbar – how to interpret its rating.

Once installed on Google Chrome, Privacyfix means that you can never be left in the dark about your privacy on the websites you visit.

Undisturbed reading

Readers are unhappy and complaining about the lack of standards in most websites, when it came to amplifying, celebrating the very essence and joy of readings. So far as we know, most of the Internet sports websites whose pages have a lot of distracting ads that take away from the reading experience.
